He went to third on Fietcher's infield out, and raced across the home plate when Meyers hit a single to left.

Philadelphia's first run came in the opening inning. Lord, the first man up, is singled to right, and reached second on Murray's fumble. He was sacrificed to third by Oldring, and came home on Marquard's wild pitch.

Unsteady in First Inning.

The New York left-dander only once during the game showed any unsteadiness, and that was in the first inning. He appeared to be nervous, and for a time had trouble reading Meyers's signals, and it looked as though he would "blow up," and Manager McGraw no doubt thought so, too, for he immediately sent Crandall down the side lines to warm up. But Marquard, under the steady coaching of his Indian catcher, soon settled down, and he had no more trouble until Baker broke up the game in the sixth inning. Marquard, however, was hit harder than the score indicates. Five of the outs were long files to Devore, and one long fly went to Snodgrass. New York sent only three flies to the outfield, two of which were captured by Lord and one by Oldring.

Plank had eight strikeouts, Devore falling a victim to the cross-fire delivery of the Philadelphian four times, while Marquard struck out twice, and Snodgrass and Murray each once. Six of the Athletics went out by the strikeout route. They were: Lord (2), Baker, Murphy and Plank (2). Marquard got four of these and Crandall two—Lord and Plank in the closing inning.

Neither Plank nor Marquard gave a base on balls. The only misplay charged against them was Marquard's wild heave in the first inning, and a man hit by a pitched ball by Plank. The Athletics went out in order in five innings.

The big hit came in the sixth inning, with two out, and when the fighting Athletics had touched up Pitcher Maryland, of the National League champions, for only three hits. 2 o'clock, with New York at the bat. The first hall pitched by Plank was a strike, and the crowd cheered. The next was also a strike, and the third a ball. The fourth pitched sent the little left fielder, Devore, back to the bench. Captain Doyle sent a fly to Lord, which the latter almost lost, slipping on the soft ground as he started after the ball. Snodgrass was tipped on the shirt front by one of Plank's speedy inshoots and went to first. He was left there, as Murray filed to Collins.

In the second half of the opening inning Lord raised the hopes of the home rooters by sending a slashing single to right. Murray was after the ball like a flash, but fumbled it in his hurry to pick it up, and Lord sprinted to second. Oldring hald down a pretty sacrifice, which put Lord on third, and then Marquard let loose a wild pitch, and Lord came home. Collins singled, and Baker, always dangerous, came up to the plate. It was here that Marquard showed signs of unsteadiness. He either could not catch or did not understand Meyera's signals. Finally he got them right, and, under the coaching of the Indian, he struck out Baker. Murphy filed to Devore.

Morkle was easily disposed of in the second inning, Barry to Davis, to the delight of the crowd. But the joyful spirit of the fans was soon turned to gloom, for Herzog's long hit got away from Oldring, in centre, and the third baseman stopped at second. Fletcher went out, Collins to Davis. On this out Herzog went to third, and came home on Meyers's single to left, evening up the score.
